

1 ITALY The new Enzo Ferrari Museum in Modena opened last week, the final project of Future Systems co-founder Jan Kaplický before his death in 2009. The project, which rises over the house where Ferrari was born in 1898, was delivered by 'loyal assistant' Andrea Morgante of London-based Shiro Studio

2 LINCOLNSHIRE Jonathan Hendry Architects has won planning permission for eight houses in the village of Waltham, north-east Lincolnshire. Based on the idea of 'a medieval walled garden', the buildings' simplistic detailing references English garden cottages. Work is expected to start on site later this year

3 LONDON S333 has won planning permission for five townhouses and two commercial buildings on the site of a former dairy in Bloomsbury, London. The 3,000m<sup>2</sup> scheme aims for an 'organic yet industrial feel', and the triangular site is sandwiched between Regent Square's terraces and St George's Gardens

4 EAST SUSSEX HAT Projects has taken the wraps off its £4 million Jerwood Gallery in Hastings. The scheme is part of a larger redevelopment of the historic Stade area in the coastal resort's Old Town, and will house the Jerwood Foundation's collection of 20th- and 21st-century paintings

5 LONDON John McAslan + Partners' dome-roofed concourse for King's Cross Station will open to passengers this weekend. The £547 million revamp, which triples the size of Lewis Cubitt's Grade I-listed masterpiece, includes a Stanton Williams-designed public square, set to finish next year
